Advice, Support & Understanding

Recent studies have shown that one in six couples seek specialist help in trying for a child. Yet, despite the high number of couples affected, many feel that no-one can possibly understand the devastation their condition causes and as a result, they feel very alone.

Join us today and ensure that you can offer your patients all the benefits that UK's national infertility support network has to offer.

Some of the ways we help your patients

- By dispelling myths and replacing them with facts
- By helping them manage their fertility through the provision of information
- By providing them with support through our highly experienced team of staff and volunteers
- By putting them in contact with others in a similar situation
